Join us in this interprofessional learning opportunity where health professions students can learn with, from and about each other in the context of exploring the application of Screening, Brief Intervention and Referral to Treatment (SBIRT). As a student you will deepen your understanding of substance misuse and gain insight from various disciplines who come together to dialogue and practice.

Target Audience: Health Professions Students and Practicing Professionals.

Learning Objectives:

Lunch will be provided.

- Apply evidence-based screening tools and brief intervention protocols
- Describe own role, responsibilities, values and scope of practice effectively to clients/patients/families and other professionals.
- Contribute to effective IP communication, including giving and receiving feedback, addressing conflict or difference of opinions, self-reflecting.
- Brainstorm how to best use IPE and SBIRT tools in clinical practice.
