Your Training is Worth College Credit

Earn Your Degree with University of New Hampshire College of Professional Studies and Get Credit for the Community Health Worker Training

College transfer credits aren't limited to what you earned in the classroom. University of New Hampshire College of Professional Studies (UNH CPS) has assessed SNHAHEC's Community Health Worker Training for college credit to help you advance your education and career goals. When we apply this training toward your bachelor's degree, you'll save more than $1,200 in tuition and fees!

Select a Degree Program

When you apply for admission, we'll apply your prior college credits and military training to your degree program. Through our partnership, you'll also receive up to four (4) college credits from your SNHAHEC training, saving you time and money.

Choose from programs such as:

- B.S. Health and Wellness
- B.S. Health Care Management
- B.S. Allied Health Leadership
- B.S. Human Services
with an option in Wellness and Prevention
- B.S. Applied Psychology
with an option in Wellness and Prevention
- and more!

Affordable Tuition

Our tuition and fees are among the lowest in the region. Financial aid is available for qualified students and you may be eligible for scholarship opportunities. Ask an advisor for details!

University of New Hampshire College of Professional Studies credit is eligible for those who complete this training between 10/28/2020 and 10/31/2025.
